

Can we trust the New Testament?

In a culture that dismisses faith as unreasonable, can Christians remain confident that the Bible is both reliable and relevant?

Bible Society Australia, in partnership with The Centre for Public Christianity, presents an evening with CEO of Bible Society Australia, author, and known media commentator on religious issues Dr Greg Clarke.

In 2012 Bible Society Australia is running a campaign called “Live Light in 25 Words” to see people engage with the Bible and to develop a love of reading the Words of Scripture and apply them to their everyday life. This “Can we trust the New Testament?” event is aimed at both Christians and non Christians addressing the authenticity of the Bible and focuses on how history supports the reliability and centrality of the gospels.

Dr Greg Clarke (PhD) is an author, public speaker and academic, interested in religion in contemporary life. With a doctorate in literature from the University of Sydney, he has written books on topics ranging from The Da Vinci Code to the end of the world, from marriage to the life of Jesus. Greg is in demand as a lecturer and media commentator on religious issues. Greg is married with four children and lives in south-east Sydney. He recently became the Chief Executive of Bible Society Australia, and was before then a Director of the Centre for Public Christianity in Sydney. Greg splits his time between management, writing, public lecturing and media work, and academia. His passion is for creative, intelligent discussion of the deeper issues of life.

Live light
in 25 words

www.biblesociety.org.au/25words

“I look forward to being a part of “Can we trust the New Testament?” tour. If you have ever had questions about the trustworthiness of the Bible’s account of Jesus, or wondered whether these ancient writings can in any way guide contemporary spiritual life, then I hope that this event will help to answer your questions.”

Dr Greg Clarke, CEO Bible Society Australia

10th September 2012

The University of WA

Murdoch LT, RoomG58, Arts

7.30pm – 9.30pm

Free Admission. Supper included.

For more information on Live Light in 25 words go to www.biblesociety.org.au/25words

Live light
in 25 words

www.biblesociety.org.au/25words